

AI, give me a hand.

In "AI, Give Me a Hand", artist Kasper Jordaens invites you into a unique exploration of creativity where human insight meets artificial intelligence.

This series showcases the fascinating interplay between Kasper's artistic vision and advanced AI algorithms. The journey begins with Kasper seeking assistance from AI to generate artistic elements—essentially asking for a hand. However, this collaboration is far from passive. Instead of letting the AI dictate the outcome, Kasper takes an active role in shaping these digital creations. He guides the AI towards his desired vision, even when it strays from what the machine would naturally produce. Through this dynamic exchange, "AI, Give Me a Hand" reveals both the capabilities and limitations of using AI as a creative tool.

It's a testament to how human creativity can steer and inspire technological innovation, resulting in unique and thought-provoking works of art that transcend traditional boundaries. This series is not just about technology; it's about the collaboration between artist and machine, pushing the limits of what can be achieved when two very different entities work together.
